Annual Report

KidsPeace®
Highlights and Innovations
from 2020

Welcome

Dear Friend of KidsPeace,

I have a confession: I REALLY don't like to wear a mask. But I always have worn my mask when out during the pandemic, because my inconvenience is insignificant in the face of the challenges that COVID-19 poses to our society.

Here at KidsPeace, the extraordinary year of 2020 certainly was one of enormous challenges – including temporary program closures, staff shortages and unanticipated infection control-related facility costs, along with the human cost of the coronavirus pandemic among clients and staff. But I'm proud to say our people have met those challenges with courage, creativity and compassion, as you can see in this Outcomes and Annual Report.

As I consider all we faced in this past year, I'm struck by how beneficial relationships are to us as we work to fulfill our mission – and how important they were in dealing with the pandemic's devastating impact:

- Managed care organizations and other payors stepped up in innovative ways to help us meet our COVID-related financial challenges, while state and federal representatives worked to secure pandemic relief funding so that we could avoid massive program halts and staff layoffs.
- The generosity of our philanthropic supporters allowed us to continue efforts like walk-in mental health assessments to those facing crisis – an offering that not only addressed the clients' needs but helped relieve the burden on hospital emergency departments during the pandemic. Donations also helped fuel revitalization of our TeenCentral.com service - just as school closings and societal shutdowns made its offering of therapeutic information and encouragement to young people absolutely essential.
- News media shined light on the pandemic's effect on mental health, and KidsPeace's role in promoting mental wellness – from identifying our staff as true "Heroes" in the crisis to publicizing our Mental Health Protective Equipment (MPE) initiative ... even to helping us teach folks how to give a socially distant "Virtual Hug."
- And of course KidsPeace associates – in direct care and support roles alike – demonstrated their magnificent commitment to those we serve by ensuring our programs stayed open and continued to function efficiently and safely for the people that rely on them.

In a real way, relationships are what face masks have been all about; as the experts say, "My mask protects you; your mask protects me." KidsPeace is able to help thousands of individuals each year because of the relationships forged with its clients, associates, partners and supporters, and as a result our society benefits as a whole.

Like all of you, I look forward to the day when wearing a mask is just a memory – but all of us at KidsPeace will remember how we were able to harness the power of relationships to meet the challenges and fulfill our mission this past year, and to position ourselves for greater success in the future.

Education

Schools all across the nation faced enormous challenges in 2020 as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. The shifting from virtual to hybrid to classroom instruction made it difficult for teachers and students -- and their schools -- to achieve their usual benchmarks in basic skills. Nevertheless, KidsPeace youth continued to receive quality education throughout the pandemic, and maintained or advanced their standing in both math and reading scores.

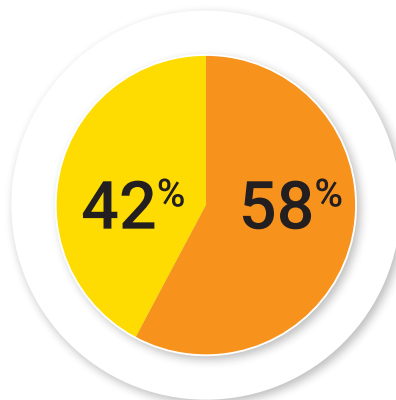

PA Education

In 2020, our goal was to maintain skill levels identified prior to the COVID-19 shutdown of schools. 60% of our student population experienced gains in their academic performance in math and 58% of students showed academic improvement in their reading scores during their residential placement with KidsPeace as shown in the graphs below.

The KidsPeace Education Department also followed up with former students' current school districts to ascertain if regression of skills were reported. To date, of the 65 students on which we received information, ALL of them maintained their skill levels since leaving KidsPeace.

"In 1882 a group of civic leaders in south Bethlehem, PA came together to consider how to respond to an outbreak of smallpox in their community, and established a home for children orphaned in the epidemic. Over the years that organization evolved ... ultimately focusing on mental and behavioral health care under its current name – KidsPeace." - Michael Slack, Healing Magazine, Summer 2020.

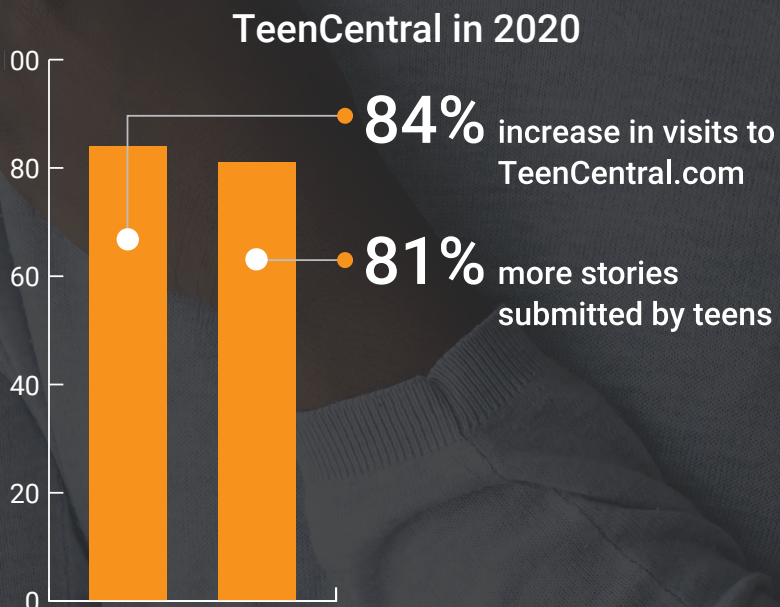

COVID-19 Pandemic 2020: KidsPeace Response

In 2020 the COVID-19 pandemic presented enormous challenges to KidsPeace's operations and people - but an organization with epidemic relief in its DNA was well-positioned to respond appropriately.

Highlights

200% increase in telehealth sessions from
March to April, 2020

• Facing the threat

Early in 2020 KidsPeace's risk management team identified the COVID-19 outbreak as a potential disruptive event, and leaders activated a "pandemic plan" to assess impact on our operations. Relying on guidance from its medical leadership, the organization implemented significant mitigation efforts starting in March – mask mandates, screening and visit limitations, required use of PPE, "work-from-home" policies for administrative staff, and enhanced communication with associates on infection control efforts.

The KidsPeace pandemic plan identified the Orchard Hills Campus congregate care programs as being at particular risk, and targeted additional mitigation efforts there. Space at KidsPeace Children's Hospital was repurposed for an isolation unit for clients diagnosed with or exposed to COVID-19, and school and activity schedules were changed to prevent intermingling of clients from different residential units, further protecting against infection. (A similar approach was taken in residential programs in Georgia and Maine, and while both programs saw an increase in cases in the fall, the experience gained at Orchard Hills helped keep the incidence of infection at manageable levels.)

Stringent infection control practices also were put in place in our outpatient and community programs. In addition, KidsPeace expanded its use of telehealth to deliver treatment when clients could not attend in person. KidsPeace foster care staff also used telehealth capabilities to maintain connection with foster families; for example, several families were still able to complete their adoption process amid the pandemic using teleconferenced judicial proceedings.

Financial impact – and help from partners and supporters

COVID-19 brought a significant financial impact resulting from declining client counts, staff shortages due to quarantine and isolation, and unexpected infection-control facility costs. But federal coronavirus relief packages, along with state assistance, prevented large-scale layoffs. At the same time, payors like managed care organizations (MCOs) worked with us on alternative payment strategies that helped ensure that our programs could continue to provide care to the populations they serve.

Our organization's ability to continue providing services was bolstered by the generosity of the community at large. An army of sewing enthusiasts delivered shipments of handmade reusable cloth face masks, and supporters provided meals for direct care staff in Georgia, Maine and Pennsylvania. Kids in Pennsylvania residential treatment received Easter baskets courtesy of a Lehigh Valley candy company, and Christmas gifts donated by members of the community. Targeted donations supported the free walk-in assessments offered at PA outpatient programs and the TeenCentral.com web based therapeutic support service – which saw its traffic soar as youth kept from school and outside activities sought out support on their own.

"Heroes Work Here"

Early in the pandemic, a manager in Georgia had a banner made to remind KidsPeace associates how much they were appreciated. The banner read: "HEROES WORK HERE" ... and within weeks banners with that same message were displayed at all KidsPeace facilities.

Direct-care staff across our programs used their creativity and commitment to overcome the barriers of infection control measures in serving the needs of clients, just as administrative staff overcame those barriers to support them – all while coping personally with the very human fear and anxiety sparked by a global health crisis. Thanks to the hard work and dedication of its associates, KidsPeace was able to withstand the most destructive aspects of the pandemic to continue to fulfill our mission.

"No one can predict exactly the full impact from the coronavirus crisis ... But I do believe that a lasting impact will be the realization of how important our services are to our communities, and how worthy of praise our associates are for delivering those services amid COVID-19."

- Michael Slack

Stockpiling MPE – Mental-health Protective Equipment

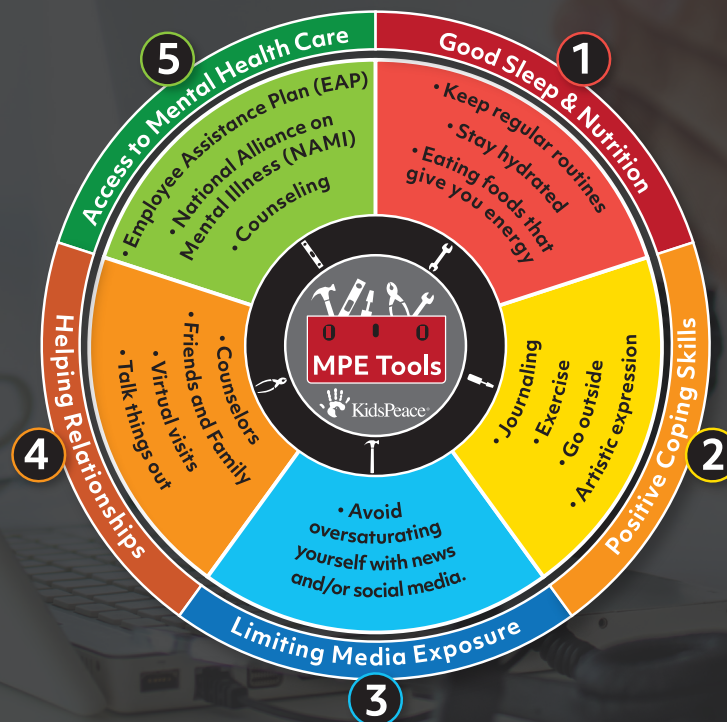

In the fall of 2020 KidsPeace's Chief Medical Officer Dr. Matthew Koval considered the long-term implications of the COVID-19 pandemic on mental wellness in our society, and recognized a change in the type of stress experienced by those coping with the pandemic.

Early in the pandemic, individuals experienced acute stress, which Dr. Koval likened to that experienced by residents of an area hit by a hurricane. But as the COVID-19 pandemic continued to spread, mitigation efforts did not slow its progress or eliminate its impact. In Dr. Koval's weather analogy, it was as if hurricanes hit our communities every day, and no one could say authoritatively when they would stop. The acute short-term stress of the early pandemic turned into long-term chronic stress - posing a different threat to mental wellbeing.

In response, Dr. Koval thought back to the need for Personal Protective Equipment, or PPE, and the failure to have enough of it on hand early in the pandemic. Going forward, he reasoned, individuals needed to learn how to stockpile mental health protections ahead of the need.

And so, KidsPeace proposed the "Mental-health Protective Equipment (or MPE) Toolkit" – a set of tools to strengthen resilience and mental wellbeing against the negative impacts of chronic pandemic stress. We launched the MPE Toolkit in November 2020, featuring a graphic presentation of its principles and suggested actions (see below).

While the MPE Toolkit was developed in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, it can serve as a template for addressing other chronic/persistent stress situations in the future.

Client quotes:

What children said about KidsPeace and KidsPeace associates at discharge.

- I was able to talk to someone and have them listen.
- Having the therapist get to me, still being able to talk on the phone even during COVID and still feel like she is there.
- I was respected and was cared for with patience.
- The staff and kids were very helpful in making me feel safe and welcome.
- The staff understood and really truly cared, my clinician made me feel welcome.
- Staff have helped me when I was mad or in need.
- I learned how to work through some conflict.
- I was able to learn coping skills, manage my emotions, and rebuild relationships with my family and improving.
- My clinician helped me out and was honest and willing to help me. KidsPeace is very supportive and non-judgmental.

The HELP tab was the most visited tab on TeenCentral in 2020, showing that teens utilized the site to find help for their problems throughout the pandemic. The second most visited tab was the “Stories” tab, hopefully reducing isolation for youth who very likely were dealing with extreme loneliness during the pandemic.

Associate Recognition

The strength of KidsPeace over its long history has always been our thousands of dedicated associates – who come from all circumstances of life, and bring their experiences and life lessons to the challenge of helping those in need. No matter what program they work in, or what their specific function may be, our associates share a spirit and passion for the success of the kids and other clients in our care. The 2021 Associate Achievement Awards presentation was held as a Zoom-based “virtual ceremony” on November 4, 2021.

Resources and Expenditures

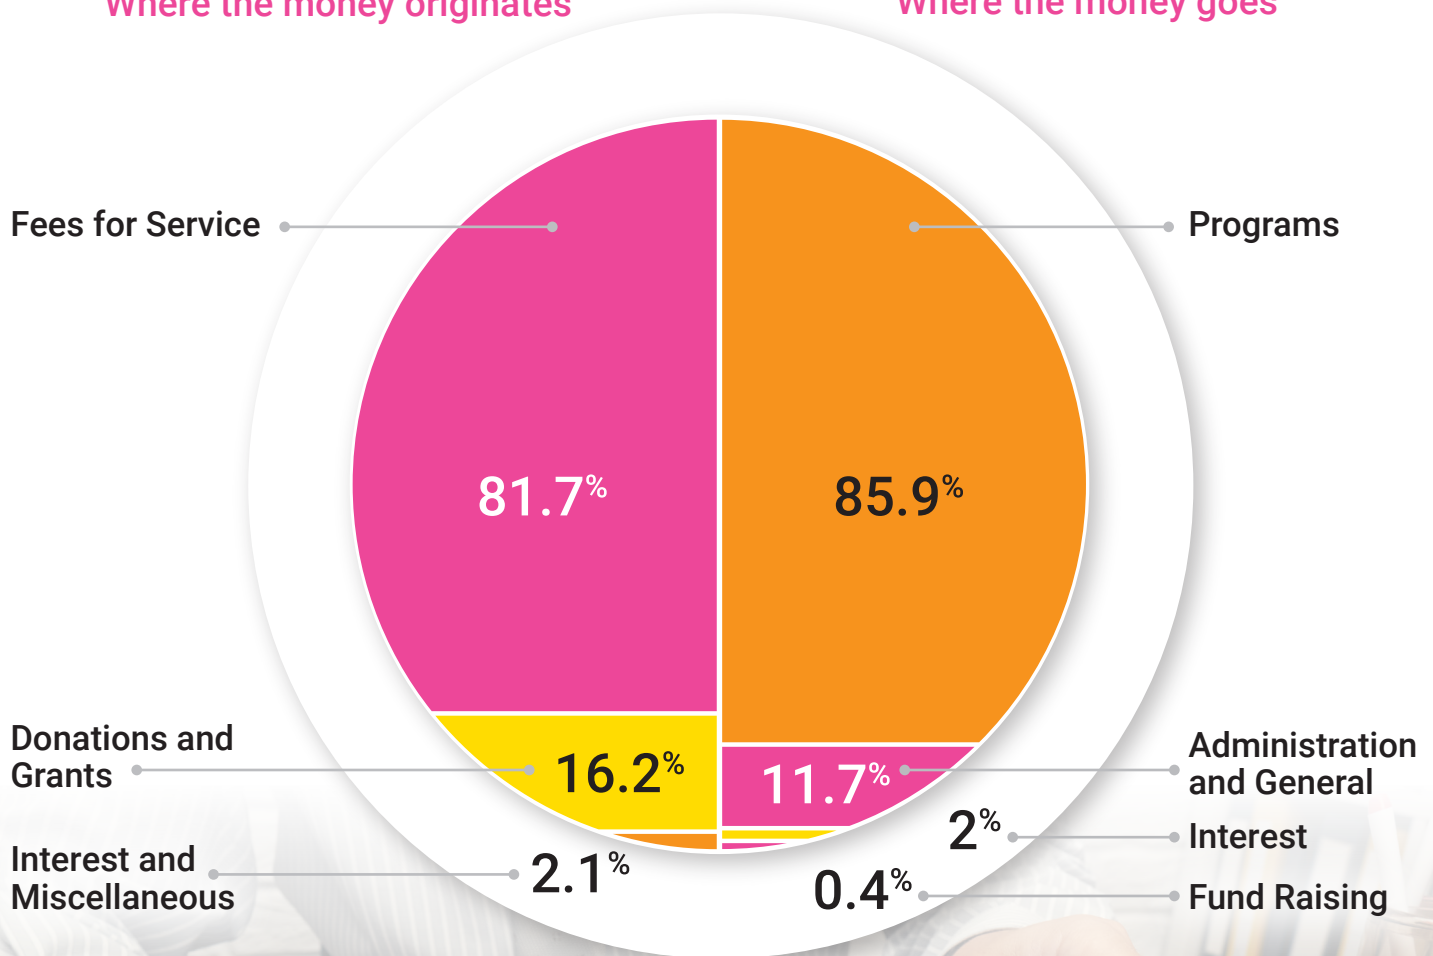

Over its 139-year history, KidsPeace has built a reputation for providing a level of care noted for its exceptional quality and effectiveness. For a nonprofit like KidsPeace, providing such care requires substantial financial resources. The bulk of our funding comes from fees paid by governmental agencies and private insurers; we are fortunate also to have a base of generous donors - individuals, foundations and granting organizations - who provide additional funding for our variety of services.

More than four out of every five dollars spent by KidsPeace in 2020 went toward program expenses to provide care and treatment to our clients, with the remainder funding administration, marketing and advancement activities.

Donations Make a Difference

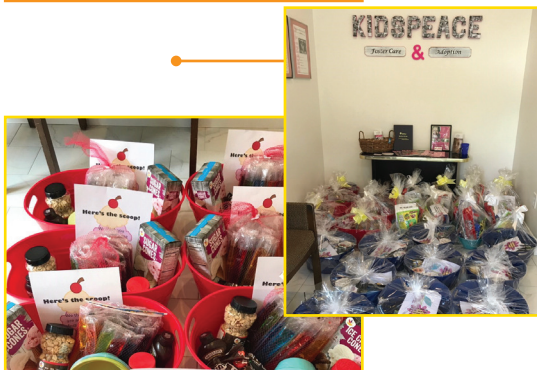

- Donors appreciated and supported KidsPeace Heroes across all of our programming. Our Board Chair, Dr. Scott Reines and his wife Tricia, provided food trucks and pizza to say thank you to our brave associates in PA and ME. Chick-fil-A, bakery cookies, and barbecue from Smoke N Pig were delivered by Dick Tisinger, Dick Plunkett and Tee Green to our Georgia Heroes. Many donors, including Tom and Patsy Upchurch, Johnny and Barbara Waters, and the KidsPeace Executive Team along with others sent in donations to help cover activities to keep our children entertained during times they couldn't receive visitors - making it a little easier on our KidsPeace Heroes.

- The KidsPeace Auxiliary provided funds to revitalize the Mary Stever's Garden on the Orchard Hills Campus. Garden beds were built for each of the residential houses, a new fence surrounds the garden and a new sign marks the garden entrance.

- Pastor Briggs from First United Methodist Church in Carrollton surprised our Georgia Campus by dropping off goodie bags for the kids and a personalized banner for each living unit.

- With a grant from the Foundations Community Partnership, our Chalfont FCCP Office was able to create themed gardening, ice cream and snack gift baskets for their foster families to enjoy.

- BOA member & pastor at Rise Church Ellsworth, Daniel Stewart, coordinated a donation of four helmets and four adult size bikes for our Graham Lake Campus.

Donations Make a Difference

- Thanks to a generous donation for the Rising Virtue Lodge #10, we were able to purchase new fishing gear – including 10 fishing poles, five nets, five tackle boxes, and so much more for the children on our Graham Lake, Maine Campus

- The Lehigh Valley Board of Associates wrapped up the PA Residential Recreation Campaign and were able to provide new fitness equipment, ropes course repairs and maintenance to the gym floor as well as line painting for the 3 outdoor basketball courts on the Orchard Hills Campus.

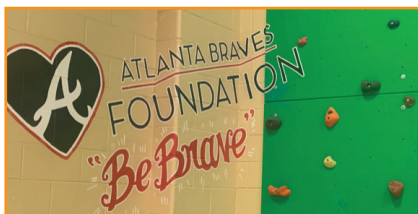

- Through the generosity of the amazing Georgia Board of Associates, our GA associates received staff appreciations bags of goodies that included a $25 Gift Card to dinner.

- Members of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE) at Bloomsburg University in Pennsylvania visited KidsPeace's Orchard Hills Campus in September to deliver donated art and recreational supplies for kids in the residential treatment programs.

- Thanks to a generous donation from Dr. Scott and Tricia Reines, we have a new van for transporting our Sarah's Smile children! Transportation and vehicles are an important need on all of our campuses.

- After 11 years, the KidsPeace Georgia indoor climbing wall has been brought to life allowing youth to enjoy the physical, mental and social health benefits thanks to the generous support of the Atlanta Braves Foundation.

2020 was an incredibly difficult year for a lot of people, and it is well known that there is a large and growing need for mental health care. Fortunately for the most vulnerable children and their families, KidsPeace services were available to provide desperately needed mental health care help. My wife and I consider ourselves very fortunate to be able to help KidsPeace with this - every child deserves this critical care regardless of their resources.

Why do I support KidsPeace? My head spins in so many different directions. I see children as they arrive at the campus. Broken, surly, loud, combative, unbending, shy, introverted, afraid and confused. My heart hurts as these are children 12 to 18 years old and they have no true happiness or sparkle in their eyes. I see them struggle being in a loving, controlled environment where they are housed, clothed, fed, provided medical care, provided healing for their mind, body and spirit, provided an education and best of all provided the opportunity to just be a kid (some do not know how!!)

Months later I see the same children who were so hurting now laughing, running up to give hugs, asking to get on stage and sing, wanting to tell you something great that happened and yes even asking if they can say a prayer before a meal.

This happens because of caring donors who provide money, birthday cakes, in-kind items and most of all prayers and love. It happens because trained staff who care are heroes and love these children through their hurt. How could I not support our future leaders – The Kids of KidsPeace!

As I was approaching retirement several years ago, I knew I needed a cause to support and "Give Back." A friend invited me to tour the Residential Care Campus in Georgia. There I met the Executive Director, Psychologist, the staff, and some of the youth treated there. I learned that they were referred to KidsPeace for treatment for their psychiatric, psychological, educational, and behavioral challenges. I also learned that these challenges were in most instances, caused by trauma incurred earlier in their childhood. The protocols used for their treatment there seek to restore their dignity, encourage independence, and a sense of belonging in the community.

I had found my cause.

The needs and number of the youth we served today has only increased, as has my passion for "giving back" in support of the hope, help, and healing provided for youth KidsPeace serves.

I support KidsPeace because I simply want to help the children there regain hope and trust in others; the seeds of recovery. Every child deserves our utmost attention and love. KidsPeace provides a safe environment to help each child understand that there are people that really do care about them and love them. I support KidsPeace because I deeply believe in its mission. Working here is not just a job, it is a calling. And since I have been blessed to be able to come to this place to work every day, to work alongside people of such commitment and purpose, to see the powerful healing that happens here each day, the least I can do is give back. I just wish I could do more!

Volunteers

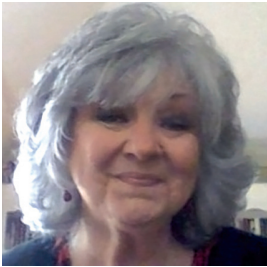

Joel Angarita

As a volunteer in 2019, Joel Angarita was always willing to help out in any way he could. He attended events, picked up and delivered art pieces for our yearly auction, and also contributed financially as a sponsor for our auction. He did all of these things with a positive attitude and a focus on helping his community through his volunteering with KidsPeace. Joel has made the decision to join the Board of Associates for 2020 where he will continue to help KidsPeace out in any way he can, always with a smile on his face.

Stacey Brooks

"I have had a lifetime passion of giving back to youth programs and I was given the opportunity to learn about KidsPeace through a family friend. My heart led me to support this great and noble cause. I have really enjoyed my opportunities to support KidsPeace and I am ecstatic to see how I can support future endeavors."

Wanda Darrah

"What can I say about Wanda Darrah? I have never seen an individual dive into volunteer service the way Wanda has. She is a beacon of light to our kids, staff, and board of associates. I'm quite sure she has already set a record for personal volunteer hours as well as donations solicited (not to mention personal gifts made). She is the queen of event planning and puts on the most amazing programs for our kids and donors. Her husband Dave, who prefers to be more behind the scenes, is a talented wood worker and has created exquisite podiums and other items for the campus. We don't know where we would be without the Darrahs!"

Jason K. Norton, CRPC, Financial Advisor, Founder & CEO

Lora Houck

"Lora Houck has given many years of service to the Maryland Board of Associates, and we are very grateful for her work and dedication. Particularly in her time as Co-Chair of our Board of Associates, her leadership, creativity, and encouragement were instrumental in the Board's community outreach and fundraising activities. Thank you, Lora!"

Caitlin DeLatta

Janice Thompson

Janice Thompson has been a silent powerhouse for KidsPeace of Fayetteville for a number of years. Her behind the scenes contributions and caring nature have not gone unnoticed. Generous volunteers like Janice are vital to the success of helping us carry out our mission. We are truly blessed to have Janice as a member of our KidsPeace family.

Definitions for statistical categories:

²Clients in Programs – Number of children and adults who received direct services at least once in a specific KidsPeace program in 2020

³Episodes of care – Total number of instances in which care was provided to a client in a KidsPeace program in 2020

NOTE: Individuals can receive care from multiple KidsPeace programs on multiple occasions during the year. Example:

- An individual who is treated at KidsPeace Children's Hospital would be counted once in each statistical category: as a client served, a client in a specific program, and as receiving one episode of care.
- If that individual moves to a residential program, they are counted as a new client coming into that program and as receiving a second episode of care – but NOT as a new client served by KidsPeace.
- If the individual then returns to the Hospital for further treatment, they are NOT counted as a new client served or a new client in the program, but their treatment IS counted as a third episode of care.

KidsPeace Expertise Outreach – Number of contacts with the general public with KidsPeace expertise-informed messaging (websites, social media, publications, media appearances)

THQ – Trauma History Questionnaire

CPSS-V (Childhood PTSD Symptom Scale Fifth Edition)
